

Waltz's dress on display

A short-sleeved, monogrammed dress made in 1922. A pincushion, stuffed with hair, made in 1947. A patchwork denim jacket made in the 1960's. These are just a few of the items made by 4-Hers over the years that will be on display July 10—Sept. 7th in "A Century of Style, 100 Years of 4-H Fashion."

Announcement of the exhibit, made earlier this year and designed to help celebrate 4-H's centennial year, hit a note with 4-H alumni. Over 300 people from Ohio, Indiana and Iowa offered clothing for the exhibit. Some still had all of their sewing projects from the 1920's and 1930's.

The oldest garment in the exhibit will be a short-sleeved dress made in 1922. The 4-Her monogrammed her initials on the dress. Two other school dresses from the 1920s will be part of the display, as well as a collection of tea towels - - a standard beginning 4-H sewing project for many years.

One family submitted items made by three generations of 4-Hers. The grandmother sent in an olive-green dress with hand-stitched crewel work that she made in 1939 on her mother's treadle sewing machine.

Jennifer Waltz of Venedocia has two garments in the exhibit: a lavender checked cotton dress which was made in 1962, and a pink wool dress that she made in 1964. The exhibit is located at Campbell Hall, 1787 Neil Avenue on the Ohio State Campus. It is open Wednesday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and is free to the public.

This dress made by Jennifer Waltz of Venedocia is now on display at Campbell Hall on the Ohio State campus.
